The Ridgway School Directors will cover themselves with a large amount of glory and also add to the decent appearance of that portion of the village in which is situated the Graded School building, by building a new fence in place of the tumble-down structure which now embraces three sides of the school grounds. And, gentlemen, when you build make it of iron, and your glory will be complete.

In the last issue of the Brookville Graphic-Democrat, W. G. Clark retires from that paper and Mr. Horn, formerly of the Jeffersonian, takes his place. The paper can now blow on its own Horn. Mr. Clark in his farewell address (we have often thought that a country editor's farewell address might be compared to Washington's farewell address to the Continental army, although it is just possible that the comparison may be far fetched) says he started the Graphic in 1875 with ten dollars borrowed capital, which he paid back, and that he now retires with twenty-five cents in his pocket and a due bill for a second hand sewing machine. My son eschew ambition.

Married. STICKLE-DEWITT—At M. E. Parsonage, Jan. 18th, 1880, by Rev. E. A. Squier, Mr. Geo. M. Stickle to Miss L. F. Dewitt, both of Ridgway.

The Weather. Thursday and Friday of last week were cold with some snow. Saturday from noon until evening there was more or less rain, part of the time a great deal more. Sunday was a pleasant day which was taken advantage of by our young folks, and some old ones too, who promenade the street all day. Monday morning last was foggy and cold, the rest of the day being pleasant and warm. Monday night a very large circle around the moon with one star in it betokened that we should have a storm before another day; during the night the rain came in torrents accompanied by wind, and continued raining, more or less until Tuesday afternoon. During the night the weather changed to cold with wind. Wednesday morning we had a slight fall of snow the rest of the day being cold and clear.

Fair and Festival. There will be a fair and festival held next week (commencing on Monday night) in McGeehan's Hall under the auspices and for the benefit of the Catholic Church continuing three or four nights. Several articles are to be contested for and awarded to the candidate having most votes. Prominent among them are a gold watch between Messrs. Fred. Scheuing, of Ridgway, and John J. Murphy, of Wilcox, and a lady's gold watch between Miss Maggie Dorcy and Miss Mary Bailey. The gentleman's watch will be decided on Wednesday night and the lady's on Tuesday night. A gold ring is to be contested for by Miss Nellie Jackson and Miss Maggie Flynn which will be decided on Thursday night when all will be ended. There will be many beautiful articles on chances. A good time is expected and a general invitation is extended to the public.

The public may rest assured that the best order will be maintained and that simple amusements only shall be tolerated to which the most fastidious and tender conscienced cannot object.

Potatoes 75 cents a bushel at Morgester's.

Meeting of Republican Co. Committee. The Republican County Committee met pursuant to a call from the chairman on Friday, Jan. 16, 1880, at 3 o'clock P. M. at the office of H. M. Powers, Esq., Ridgway, Pa. Was called to order by the chairman who in a few well selected remarks stated the object of the meeting. On motion of H. H. Wensel J. M. Schram was chosen secretary of this meeting and also permanent secretary of the county committee.

The names of the committee were read by the secretary and the following townships and boroughs responded: St. Marys; Fox; Ridgway; Jones; Spring Creek; Horton. Communications were read from J. J. Taylor authorizing Hallis Sidlinger to act in his stead and from W. A. Irwin in which D. C. Oyster was to cast his vote and also from D. C. Oyster substituting Frank VanOrsdal. On motion substitutions were accepted.

It being suggested that by the removal of Mr. Bieberger from St. Marys a vacancy was caused in the committee W. W. Ames was chosen to act in his place.

H. H. Wensel was nominated as delegate to the state Convention and was unanimously elected.

Mr. Powers, Mr. Ames and Mr. Spafford were chosen as committee to confer with committees of the other counties, composing this senatorial district in regard to senatorial delegate to state convention.

On motion it was declared that delegate to state convention should go unopposed.

On motion adjourned sine die. J. M. SCHRAM, Secretary.

If you want a lounge now is your time to buy. I have three on hand that were bought before the rise. Call at the corner of Main and Mill street.

Library of Universal Knowledge. Volume IV, of this great work, published by the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, New York, is ready Jan. 15th, and volume V. will be issued about ten days later. They have been delayed somewhat by the printing of the large editions of the previous three volumes and the other publications of the house their facilities for manufacture having been taxed far beyond their capacity. Removing January 1st to the Tribune Building, and to the building No. 25 Beckman and No. 18 Spruce street, where their facilities will enable them to manufacture from 6,000 to 8,000 volumes a day, the publishers expect to complete the entire work within the year, as announced. The volumes thus far issued being only the reprint of the last edition of the well-known Chamber's Encyclopedia, nothing more need be said of them than that they are well printed and bound; their form is vastly more convenient than the usual unwieldy quarto or octavo, and their price is cheap beyond all precedent in book-making, so that to the uninitiated it is a mystery how so much can be given for a little money, but to the practical printer and book-maker, who knows how the greatest element in modifying the cost of books is the number of buyers among whom the investment cost is to be distributed, the wonder would be not that the books can be made for the price, but that the number of buyers should be counted except by millions. These who take pleasure in the dissemination of useful knowledge and choice literature will be glad to aid with their influence an enterprise so altogether worthy. The publishers will send any quantity of descriptive catalogues, to those who may apply for distribution among acquaintances.

Deat's Run and Dry Saw Mill. The slight cold which the winter caught last week, has passed and it is as open as ever.

The Bennett's Branch S. S. Convention which was held at Hick's Run last Friday and Saturday was a complete success notwithstanding the absence of Rev. Norcross and Prof. King who were expected to assist in the labors. The special sessions held at the red school house and Benne-zette also met with success.

The death of Wm. Beglin of Hick's Run occurred on the morning of the 15th inst. He passed away in the triumph of his sins forgiven. A smile remained upon his lips after he had passed over the dark River of Death. It may be said of him that he had no enemies in this wide world, nor not one. His bereaved parents have the heart-felt sympathy of the people.

Mr. J. O. Johnson has been sick for some days past; but is now able to be around.

Mr. Frank Lenig will preach in place of Rev. Norcross next Sabbath. D. C. I.

Brookville Local. Dr. Lowery, of Brookville, was in town a few days last week.

G. W. Sibley is about to vacate the Railroad House. Wash is a first-rate landlord as all his guests will testify.

We do not know whether it is the fashion in other places or not, but at evening parties in Brookville, the young ladies modestly conceal themselves in closets and sometimes remain there all the evening.

W. P. Kearney has just returned from the city with a new stock of goods. Having recently enlarged his store-room, his well filled shelves present a fine appearance. We have not examined his supply of picks and shovels, but suppose it to be correspondingly large, as we hear he entertains strong hopes of a railroad in the spring.

Brookville has for a long time rejoiced under the name of a temperance town. But of late there has been considerable drunkenness. The question is asked, "where do they get the liquor?" As we passed along the street on Saturday we noticed several who appeared to be bowed down as if by some heavy burden, but with their eyes fixed on a distant goal, were plodding on with all the earnestness of a pilgrim pressing wearily to some sacred shrine.

A gentleman from Ridgway entering one of our stores and noticing a lady at an opposite counter, asked of the clerk her name. A few moments afterwards the clerk inquired of the lady of the request made, she replied, "Humph, he needn't ask my name, I know who he is. He is Bev. M.—from Ridgway. I have corresponded with him for five years."

We began to think we were getting quite popular, but getting a present labeled Miss Vale Elnora and Vale being uppermost in her mind we will overlook it this time and speak to "Vale" about it.

There has been a series of meetings held at the Brandy Camp school house for the last two weeks.

A few days ago Peter O'Neil came to the conclusion that it was time to butcher so shouldering his musket and sledge he started for the barnyard for he had a hog and a bull to kill, and thought he would kill the hog first, he loaded his old musket with pigeon shot and while the hog was eating Peter let drive, the hog got on eating, Peter went into the house and re-loaded this time with buckshot. Coming out he again fired taking no more effect than before the hog not paying any attention whatever. The next time he loaded with bullets, slugs, spikes, &c., and being sure to draw a bead this time fired cutting a few bristles and drawing a little blood. The hog looked up this time a little and looking Peter in the face as much as to say who cares for you, by this time there was a tramp passing by he was called in and emptied the contents of a sixteen repeating carbine at his hogship with the same result as above (now Peter is noted for his pick and sticktoothiness,) by this time there was blood in his eye and gardening his heart he picked up the sledge got the old woman to hold him (the pig) by the tail, while he dealt him a blow between the eyes which laid him low. So next came the bull's turn. He and the little duteleman drove him into the barn shutting the door after them, now, says Peter we will make short work of you, and taking five min more than five feet laid away the gentleman cow gave a yell, put down his horns and up his tail and in less time than it takes to record it Peter was shouldered with his gun and put through the side of the barn.

"Swamper" is the head man building the shanties for Short & Horton, only on Friday he was a little too heavy and thought there was a trunk or two in the way.

Monday was a large day for two or three of the boys. Tuesday they thought of their head in the morning.

Frank Jackson has traded his mule for a single-barreled rifle and a light wagon. He don't want anything around him that can kick higher than himself.

"Swamper" made a slight mistake when he told the story of William Silvis and wife or perhaps he was informed wrong.

Warren Moshier says he is tired of this country (and we think the country is tired of him) and is selling off all his stock with the intention of going in search of his wife and child (no one knew that he had a wife and child until he said so) in the neighborhood of Wilcox. Warren we are sorry you are going to leave us but perhaps it is for the best as the child is a great deal of trouble to her and she you are undoubtedly a nurse, and as you are a first-class hand for that business. But don't ask when you come back in a day or two if that is the same old cat they had when you went away.

Important Decision of the Supreme Court. A CHARGE OF UNLAWFUL CONSPIRACY IN OIL TRANSPORTATION DECLARED TO BE UNFOUNDED - RAILWAY COMPANIES HAVE THE RIGHT TO ADOPT ALL JUST AND REASONABLE METHODS TO INCREASE BUSINESS.

W. Munhall et al. vs. Pennsylvania Railroad Company and Allegheny Valley Railroad Company. Error to Court of Common Pleas No. 1, of Allegheny County. Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Decision filed in January, 1880.

These were actions on the case against the defendants for conspiracy and injury to the plaintiffs respectively in their business. Plaintiffs were engaged in the transportation of crude oil in boats and barges down the Allegheny river to Pittsburgh. The Allegheny Valley Railroad Company was engaged in transporting it by rail. The crude oil was brought to Pittsburgh by both modes, principally for the purpose of being there refined, and then sent to the seaboard for market. Competition was thus created. The railroad company had some advantage over the barge men. At some seasons of the year there was an insufficiency of water in the river, at others it was frozen. The railroad could carry at all times. At first the crude oil was carried in barrels. As the quantity largely increased, tanks were substituted. This made transportation by railroad more desirable and gave it an additional advantage.

The cause of complaint was that the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company entered into an arrangement with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the effect of which was to take from the plaintiffs that transportation of oil which they otherwise would have obtained. It was not complained that the price of freight from Pittsburgh east increased by this arrangement, nor that the public in any manner suffered thereby. The evidence to show the alleged illegal conspiracy disclosed the fact that each party carried crude oil from any port at which it was taken to Pittsburgh and its vicinity, at one rate, without regard to distance, and that the refiners had a uniform through rate for refined oil to the seaboard, by the Allegheny Valley and Pennsylvania Railroad, from any given point where the oil reached the former, rate and crude.

The Allegheny Valley Railroad crosses the Western Pennsylvania Railroad at Allegheny Junction, and by means of the latter road, connects with the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In order more successfully to compete with river transportation the Allegheny Valley Railroad carried crude oil to the refiner at Pittsburgh and its manufactured product to Allegheny Junction at one uniform rate, thus giving to oil refiners at Pittsburgh as favorable returns as if their refineries had been located at Allegheny Junction. They had one uniform rate on oil from the oil regions to the seaboard.

The case against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was to the effect that it received its pay from the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company, partly in receipts showing money paid, whilst from the boatman it exacted payment in money. Upon the plaintiffs' own case the above facts were made to appear, and the court before whom the cases were heard entered compulsory nonsuits, upon the ground that the plaintiffs had failed to show any illegal conspiracy on the part of the defendant. This action of the court was assigned as error by Munhall et al., who brought the case to the Supreme Court, contending that upon the evidence adduced they had made out such a case as entitled them to go to a jury.

The Supreme Court, in passing upon the cause in an opinion by Justice Mercier, says:

Each party had an undoubted right to enter into a just and fair arrangement with a corporation or association of men whereby its business should be increased, although the effect of the arrangement may have been to take business from the other. Either party, with a view of increasing his business, may extend more favorable terms to all shippers, although others engaged in the business may incidentally be injured thereby. The fact that the public patronize those lines of transportation which give the most favorable terms constitute no just ground of complaint."

After reciting the facts of the case against the Allegheny Valley Railroad Justice Mercier says, "We see nothing unfair in this arrangement. To deny this right to the Allegheny Valley Railroad would be an unwarranted interference with the management of its business, and would deprive the public of the advantage of the competition to which it is justly entitled.

"Then as the action of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in the transportation of refined oil from Pittsburgh east. It was carried over the road of each company; each was entitled to and received its share of the money thus earned. Whether it was at first paid to one and afterwards adjusted between them gives the plaintiffs no right to complain. The two companies had the right, each for their own convenience or for the convenience of the refiners and shippers, to require the whole freight on refined oil to be paid to the one that first carried it. The right of conferring railroad corporations to make contracts for through rates is incident to their powers unless prohibited by their charter. In the present case the right was not prohibited. It was exercised in a just and reasonable manner. It was not unconscionable. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company carried refined oil at no different rate, whether it was the product of crude oil brought to Pittsburgh by rail or by water. The same rate was charged to each. The mode of receiving its pay was different; that carried by water paid in money only; that carried by rail partly in receipts showing money already paid. There was no rebate. It was no unjust discrimination. Neither company received any share of the other's earnings; each received its own. We see nothing unfair or unobtainable in the arrangement provided on the part of either of the defendants. It is not a restraint on trade, nor does it come within the principle condemned in Givissell vs. Pennsylvania Railroad, 3 A. L. J. 728. If the plaintiff suffered thereby it is an incident often occurring to persons engaged in transportation, as new modes are adopted and reduced rates thereby established. Neither corporations, nor individuals ought to be denied all reasonable benefits which flow from the active competition of trade. Having the right to adopt rates lower than crude oil could be carried in barges cannot charge the case. His object was to secure freight for his road. The fact that he foresaw the result of his efforts in so doing and also declared it, matters not. Neither he nor the company which he represented was thereby compelled to relax all just and reasonable methods to increase the business of the road. It is unnecessary to refer specifically to the other matters discussed."

Judgment affirmed.
